- > Graduation bonus of $3,500 per year for two years to help pay accumulated HECS debt in your first and second year working with Brown Consulting.
- > Mentoring and training — with access to work experience across civil, structural and environmental engineering projects.

ABOUT BROWN CONSULTING

Brown Consulting is a national professional infrastructure services company which provides civil and structural engineering as well as town planning, surveying and environmental services.

As a progressive employer we'd like to see more women in the engineering profession. Each year, to encourage more women to enter the exciting and rewarding engineering profession, we provide a number of university scholarships. Applications open from September in the final year of high school and close in February the following year (or as vacancies are filled). As part of the scholarship we'll financially contribute to the cost of university studies throughout the duration of the engineering degree. We also offer paid work experience during the university break and/or throughout the semester. At the end of the degree, Brown Consulting will provide a full time position, paid at competitive market rates and a graduation bonus paid over two consecutive years.

The scholarship is open to young women throughout Australia (only permanent residents or Australian citizens can apply) however the successful applicant needs to be available to work in Brisbane, Canberra, Melbourne, Sydney or the Sunshine Coast office.

ERIN PEEK

Dream Big Scholarship Recipient Undergraduate Engineer, Brisbane

Erin admits she didn't know a lot about engineering in high school. But she's glad that a conversation with her school careers advisor and her keen interest in maths and science has led her to the engineering profession.

Erin is an engineering student at the University of Queensland and a recipient of Brown Consulting's Dream Big Scholarship.

before I've been taught them at university”*

The Dream Big Program provides Erin with paid work experience, financial support for university expenses and a job when she graduates. For Erin, the opportunity to undertake work placements while studying and gaining real world experience is the greatest benefit.

“Through my work experience I’ve been able to see the theories I’m studying at university being put into practice. And in some cases I’m learning things at Brown Consulting before I’ve been taught them at university,” Erin said.

“Also, working for extended periods during the longer university holidays means I can see projects through and gain a better understanding of the development process,” she added.

“All my colleagues at Brown have been fantastic and are happy to sit down and explain things in detail. In addition, my office has a great social club and fitness program for staff, which is something I didn’t expect.”

Erin is now sharing her positive experience with other young women who are not sure about their future career.

“I’ve talked to a number of current high school students about engineering and working at Brown Consulting. I think engineering is a really interesting profession and I love the project management side. I also think Dream Big is a great program and I feel privileged to be a recipient of the scholarship,” said Erin.
